

GOOD ROADS ELECTION FEB. 5

If good roads shorten distances, promote closer acquaintance and a factor in civilization, getting people out, and in closer touch with the world, roads are not a luxury, but a necessity, and other advantages to follow, surely the proposed bond issue for Hancock county, to be voted on February 5th, will want to carry.

32ND YEAR—NO. 3

CASEY TO GIVE FIRST BALL NEXT SATURDAY NIGHT

Bay St. Louis K. C. Organization to Entertain at Woodmen Hall for Benefit of Building Fund—Plans Are to Make Affair One of Unusual Interest and Success.

If enthusiasm, mingled with interest, coupled with a united determination, counts for anything, then it is safe to say the forthcoming ball by the local K. C.'s will prove the biggest thing yet.

Encouraged by the fact that the Council already has a nice egg nest of possibly a few thousand dollars, and prompted by the necessity of owning a hall and clubhouse of its own, the members of the Bay St. Louis K. C. No. 1522, have decided to make a drive for funds and to build in the immediate future. Not something for the dim and distant future, but for now—today—not tomorrow. This is the consensus of opinion and all interested in it is a united front, unanimous in its expression, emphatic and positive.

On Saturday of next week, January 27th, the first ball by the Council will take place, at Woodmen Hall. Music to be furnished by the Famous Happy Five Jazz Babies. This affair, an announcement is given out officially, there will be plenty of eat, plenty (soft) drinks. Supplemented with good music, spacious hall and good dance floor and sponsored by Casey, what more! Surely this is a combination of amusement and business with! In order to make it popular and not to pitch the purse an admission of only 50 cents has been fixed, ladies, 25 cents.

Various committees have been selected, of which that master of magnificence (no dead wood here), Hon. W. H. Starr, has been made chairman.

Joseph O. Maufrey, who is Grand Knight, is very confident of the success of the ball, and this opinion is shared by other high officials of the order.

It is proposed, if present plans carry, to put up a building commensurate with the dignity of the order and with the fast growth and beauty of Bay St. Louis, a structure that all citizens will point to with at least civic pride.

These folks in the air. For Casey was "Casey smile" that he had on "Over There" smile.

Therefore, make no date for next Saturday evening. In anticipation folks are talking about the ball. They will continue talking in pleasurable comment "After the Ball."

DR. A. A. KERGOSIEN ANNOUNCES FOR CLERK

Dr. A. A. Kergosien, clerk of the courts of Hancock county, is announced in this issue of The Echo as a candidate for re-election, and asks every man and woman voter to give his candidacy their most careful and favorable consideration.

Dr. Kergosien has served the people of Hancock county as a county clerk for three consecutive terms, and knows the workings and requirements of the office perhaps better than any other man in the county. His knowledge of its affairs and its operation and the splendid working force he has organized for the execution of its duties, qualifies him for a continuance of the administering of its affairs.

"While I had during the last campaign planned to probably enter upon the practice of medicine again," says Dr. Kergosien, "my present health has made it necessary for me to completely forsake any such idea. A physician is a public servant day and night. It is the latter that is so hard. The calling out at all hours, the break and loss of sleep are killing, and I have found it would be impossible to return to my practice under such strenuous conditions. Hence, in order that I may rear and educate my younger children, I find much will devolve upon me and I must do with which I can do best and with the lightest tolls on my health and strength."

Continuing, Dr. Kergosien said the people, both of the county and the city of Bay St. Louis, had always been extremely kind and favorable to him and he felt that since he could continue giving them the same splendid service, that his administration had always given, he felt these people would again rally to his support.

Dr. Kergosien is so well acquainted and with friends wherever he is known, that there is little or nothing to be said of him. His record is his own recommendation, and it is certain the public is appreciative, and would not lose sight of this fact, and particularly under the conditions as quoted in the foregoing.

HANCOCK COUNTY CHILD WELFARE UNIT IS ACTIVE

Organization, Working Under Auspices of Mississippi State Board of Health, and County Health Officer, With County Superintendent of Education, Has Arrived.

The Child Welfare Unit, working under the auspices of the Mississippi State Board of Health, and in conjunction with Dr. Mead, county health officer, and county superintendent of education, T. E. Kellar, has arrived in Bay St. Louis, headed by Mrs. Hendrickson, M. D., director of the unit.

The unit will visit the different schools over the county. "Whenever possible," says Dr. Fredericksen, "a notice will be mailed to the teacher, school trustee and parent in our work."

Although a survey of the number of hookworm cases was carried on some years ago, the unit will continue to make an examination for hookworm disease in every child. The control of hookworm is one of the biggest factors in maintaining a high standard of health among school children as well as adults.

The schools to be visited the week of January 22nd are as follows: Monday, 9:30 A. M.—Cap Lader. Monday, 21 A. M.—Sellers Consolidated. Tuesday—Jordan River Colored. Wednesday—Catahoula Colored. Thursday, 9:30 A. M.—Bayou La Terre. Thursday, 11 A. M.—Dedeaux Consolidated.

Friday—Dedeaux Consolidated. An attempt will be made to visit the schools at time scheduled. However, should rain make the roads impassable on that day or other untoward incidents might occur over which there is no control, another day for the visit will be set.

Dr. Fredericksen is very enthusiastic and earnest over the work, as well as Dr. Mead, of Logtown, county health officer. Mr. Kellar, the county superintendent of education, is co-operating fully and giving the matter considerable of his time and effort. This general cooperation ought to and will prove of immeasurable value.

E. VAN WHITFIELD FOR CLERK OF THE COURTS

Well-Known Sheriff Is Announced in This Issue of The Echo for Office of Chancery and Circuit Clerk—Has Served in Various Capacities With Satisfaction to Public.

Unable to succeed himself because the law does not allow him, E. Van Whitfield, well-known sheriff of Hancock county, is announced in this issue of The Echo as a candidate for clerk of the courts—chancery and circuit.

Having served the county eleven years as surveyor, four years as sheriff and tax collector, four years as clerk of circuit court, and at present serving for four more years as sheriff and tax collector, it is evident he is qualified and experienced, and should be elected to the office of clerk of chancery and circuit courts, he would administer to its duties in such manner that would be highly acceptable, resulting from his long experience and active tenure of different offices over so long a period.

Mr. Whitfield is not only a man possessed of such qualifications, but personally is popular over the county. He has friends wherever known.

In every instance he has served the people of his county efficiently and consistently, serving them fully and with every promptitude possible consistent with satisfactory service. He is devoted to his work. He realizes it is a public trust.

Unusually busy just now, and will continue so until after tax collecting time, he will be unable to get out and about, but as soon as the duties of his office will allow, he will endeavor to enter upon an active campaign, and will visit not only every section of the county, but will try to see every man and woman voter. He wishes to continue his service to his country, and will appreciate the aid and influence of every voter.

In the meantime The Echo commends his candidacy to the earnest consideration of every voter and wishes him success.

HONEY ISLAND "KING" ANSWERS INEVITABLE CALL

Bill Holden, Aged 94 Years, in Employment of and Pensioned by Pottevant & Favre Lumber Company, Dead. Was Famous Guide for Hunters and Received Royal Title.

A special Wednesday from Pearl River, La., to the New Orleans Times-Picayune says the "King" of Honey Island has answered the last call.

He was W. M. "Bill" Holden, 94 years old, for the last fifty years in the employ of the Pottevant Favre Lumber Company. He received his royal title from hundreds of hunters of South Mississippi and South Louisiana, for whom he often acted as guide.

His death followed an accident, which occurred while he was out hunting. He was shot by a stray bullet from a gun which he was using to hunt a bear.

He was a well-known figure in the community, and his death was a great loss to the hunting community.

MRS. ALVIN MARIUS LOSES SISTER AT WESTWEGO

Mrs. Amelia Miller Passed Away at Her Louisiana Home Saturday Morning—Had Visited Here From Time to Time—Survived by Seven Children and Husband.

Mrs. Alvin Marius of this city, has the sympathy of all who know her, and of the community in general on the occasion of the death of her youngest sister, Amelia Miller, who passed away at her home in Westwego, La., at an early hour last Saturday morning.

Mrs. Miller was no stranger here. She had visited at the home of her sister in Bay St. Louis from time to time, and some years since resided here for a season when high water drove her from her home and disaster threatened. She was a native of New Orleans, but had lived at Westwego for the past twenty years. It was about a year ago Mrs. Miller was taken ill and ever since was practically confined to her bed. But with sublime courage and Christian fortitude she bore her suffering, and she was a devoted wife and mother, the home blessed with seven children. One who knew Mrs. Miller best said she was a sweet woman, tender and solicitous to every want of her family and a friend to those who knew her best.

She was identified with community work and affiliated with fraternal interests, a member of Hermitage Lodge No. 28, F. and A. M., Orleans Delta Chapter No. 1, E. A. M. and Grand Consistory of Louisiana.

Mrs. Marius and the other members of the sorrowing family have the sympathy of the many who know them. The fact that the deceased was a beautiful and exemplary wife, useful and of benefit to those who were nearest to her, ought to prove a great consolation.

RAY ST. LOUIS YOUNG MAN HAS MODEL POULTRY RANCH

Luvick J. Mitchell, Recently Returned From A. & M. College, Enters Poultry Raising on Professional Plane—Has Interesting Place at Residence in Booklet Avenue.

One hundred and sixty-five white Wyandottes, all perfect birds, housed in a roost of latest and approved pattern, is an interesting sight. Luvick J. Mitchell's poultry ranch, located at his place of residence in Booklet avenue, near the beach front, is the very best in poultry raising, according to standard adopted by the Agricultural Department at Washington and in Mississippi.

The young man, a world-war veteran, who was Over There and saw service on the front lines, recently completed a vocational course of poultry husbandry at Mississippi A. & M. College, and has gone into the business. Having studied the course and its scientific and practical principles, he is applying his knowledge to the business, and from all indications, his birds are making a success of his venture.

He intends soon to start a battery of incubators in operation, as soon as these shall have arrived, and later in the spring there will be broilers for sale. Mr. Mitchell has every reason to believe the business will prove a successful and paying one. Even though part of the training, under the auspices of the government school, and upon which point Mr. Mitchell lays special stress, is to sell at a price to admit only of normal profit. The government gives this course and wishes its practice to be one that will assist in constructing the entire country will benefit thereby in addition to the men who are studying and become practical poultry husbandmen.

There are several interesting features connected with the profession. For instance, at 3:30 every morning a switch from Mr. Mitchell's bedside turns on a flood of electric light in the big pen where the fowls roost, and soon every hen is alive to the light and begins the day's work. At 9:30 a. m. says Mr. Mitchell, the day's work of production is accomplished. Every hen has produced for the day. Then the feeding for the balance of the day is diminished, excepting a source of economy. In other words, this camouflaging the hen never has a longer day. Later Mr. Mitchell intends to have the electric lights turned on automatically in the different pens.

Another feature is the nest arrangement. A long row of boxes is arranged. No light is admitted. The hen enters from the rear. When egg gathering time has arrived, the front of the long row of nests is made accessible by dropping a hinged wall or door from the front. Mrs. Hen is very secretive. Seemingly she knows the value of her product and wishes to conceal it not only safely, but always in some inaccessible place. You have noticed that time and again, dear reader, on your own premises. And how many times you remember the old hen has come out with her babies as a result of a stolen egg.

Mr. Mitchell is an intelligent and energetic young man, painstaking and known for his enterprising endeavor. He is not only going to succeed, but will supply in Bay St. Louis a long-felt want, and will be the means of supplying an example that might be followed with profit to others and open up a new avenue of local pursuit and success.

BIG BAY ST. LOUIS BOXING CONTEST TONIGHT

There Will Be a Carnival of Athletic Events Tonight at the Local Armory in Second Street—Under Auspices of Howitzer Company, Mississippi National Guard.

Practically all paths will lead to the local armory tonight.

It is the date set for the "Big Boxing Contest," as the large diamond-shaped poster cards, issued from The Echo presses, announce in letters bold plainly to be read and emphatic in the box-car characters. "Tonight, the night!" as the famous jazz song of a few seasons ago carried as its most catchy phrase.

As part of the program of the local military organization, Howitzer Company, No. 155, Mississippi National Guards, in the athletic training of its members, the series of boxing contests, given from time to time, are proving not only of interest and entertainment, but of physical benefit as well and are becoming more popular with each successive event.

The affair tonight is another of this series, to take place at the Armory in Second street. Seats are provided for all, and ladies and gentlemen alike attend. To defray costs and for the benefit of the company, there will be an admission of $1.00 charged for gentlemen and 50 cents for ladies.

A select program has been arranged for tonight, beginning at 8:30 o'clock. First number will present Dud Carver, the pride of Bay St. Louis, vs. Sam Pizzafola, of New Orleans, in every way an equal match. This is considered a desirable prize fight, and one that will prove of equal interest.

Kid Thomas, of Bay St. Louis, will try conclusions with "Dwarf" Peterson, the Kid who is to make Kila Famous.

And Young Vassalli, also of Bay St. Louis, who shakes a wicked fist, is to meet Grover Mallini, a star of the arena from the classic city of Pass Christian.

Supplementing these features there will be a number of exciting prize fights that alone ought to be well worth the price of admission.

It is the aim of the management to put on a program of better merit and interest each time, and tonight is to be no exception.

All friends of the manly art, clean sport and athletics are urged to be present tonight and assist in the up-building of the local military.

PAY YOUR POLL TAXES.

This is election year in Mississippi. There will be an election held in August for every office in the State and county—from governor down to constable. Every man and woman will want a voice in the selection of the men and women to fill these trusts, and it behooves every resident (who is not already registered) to register, both with the city and county clerks, and, above all, pay their poll tax.

Failure to pay county and State tax, including poll tax, will mean disfranchisement in that sense that the citizen will not be able to vote in any of these elections. This is the last month to pay poll tax. After February 1st it will be too late.

The Echo feels it cannot lay too much stress on this point. This paper wants to see every man and woman registered and their poll tax paid in order that they may be eligible to vote and participate in the responsibility of selecting those who they may deem best for the different offices.

It is a duty one owes to country and self.
Let this reminder serve to successful purpose.

WHERE THERE'S A WILL—

Do you read the bank advertising in the columns of The Echo and other newspapers coming to Bay St. Louis? Some of the most interesting and ingenious bits of reading matter to be found anywhere are coming from the hands of the advertising men nowadays, and the bank advertising has come to hold its own with that of the department stores and the rest of the selling news that makes newspapers and magazines so entertaining.

"They Never Found His Will," announces a big bank in a large city, and tells a story of unnecessary difficulties. He had told his wife about having made a will, but it could not be found. He died after a short illness, leaving the wife and three children.

"The real property which, in the absence of a will, belongs to the children subject to the widow's dower, cannot be sold until the youngest comes of age, 19 years later, unless the mother goes through complicated court procedure. It is going to be difficult, in the interim, if not impossible, for her to educate and keep the three children on the insurance, and the income from her third of the property. Yet he meant to leave her in control of the property."

The moral drawn by the bank is—have your own will drawn, with the bank named as executor. It's a good plan.
All sorts of complications are likely to arise in case of sudden death, and minor children need to be protected. Wives, also, who have shared in the early struggles, ought to be assured their just share of the later rewards.

No man wants to leave his affairs in a tangle for his heirs to wrestle with, particularly if his means are modest. It might be said that the smaller the fortune, the greater the need of a clear and explicit will.
Wills aren't for old people in their dotage to make. They are for young people to help keep their affairs in order.

SOME GOOD ADVICE.

Stand by your home newspaper. If there is anything in Bay St. Louis worth talking about, ten chances to one your home town newspaper had a hand in putting it there, and if there exists any unsightly or unsavory nuisance, twenty chances to one it will stay there until your editor either sees it or smells it and wipes his pen on the town board's breeches. If anybody beyond the corporate limits of your town ever learns that there is such a place as this, it will in most instances be through the medium of your home town newspaper. Every town gets its money's worth in its home newspapers. For the newspaper is the wagon that carries all your goods to market. It ought to be kept in good repair. It will pay to grease it with a little subscription money, oil it with advertising, and splutter it with your job putting patronage.

Stand by your local newspaper. It is the guardian and defender of your interests, the forerunner and pioneer of every advance movement, and the sturdy advocate of law and order. Take it away and it would not be long before the town would be a lawless place. It had, for instance, no police force, and no courts, and no jails, and no schools, and no churches, and no nothing.

IF YOU'LL SUCCEED, COMPETE WITH YOURSELF.

J. Ogden Armour is one of the biggest and most successful business men in the country. Of this there is no doubt. In the current number of Armour's Magazine he has this message to his employees. It is a message for you, Mr. Man, and the boy who will soon be grown and go out into the world; read it with inspiration and future profit. It is a gem in wisdom and common sense. The right-thinking reader will cut it out for frequent reference. It is a business and common sense sermon.

"It is hard enough to compete with the other fellow.
"But the hardest job any man has is to compete with himself.
"There is no mystery about competing with others. They beat you, or you beat them, and that's all there is to it. Everybody sees the results. But a man may be thoroughly outdone by himself without recognizing the cause.

"There are several danger signals which we may all watch, however, and they will guide us.

"First, we should beware of being dilatory. Putting things off is one of the sure indications that our feet are on the brink of the 'slippery slope.' It is easy to deceive ourselves. We say we are waiting for the proper inspiration." Or we allow ourselves to think we are 'too busy' to attend to this or that—meanwhile sorting out all the easy things to do, and side-tracking the jobs that are hard or distasteful.

"Inspiration comes from action. It is the result of making up one's mind to take the plunge. Resolve, for instance, that you are going to call today on the hardest prospect you know; see for yourself if that won't start your wits to working, or pick out the hardest job on the schedule for today's program—and go at it. Then note how mountains of difficulties fade away.

"Some men never have 'inspiration' and never do big things—not because they lack the ability, but because they can't make up their mind to act.

"Another danger signal is losing interest in one's work. This is a red flag that denotes calamity ahead. No one ever yet lost interest in a job at which he really worked up to the limit of his capacity—unless he happened to be a misfit. And the misfits are very few compared with those who grow stale through indolence. Don't ask yourself if you are a misfit. Ask, rather, 'Am I doing my work to the limit of my ability?'

"It is when we quit working our job and it begins to work us that we get bored. We don't get something for nothing in this world—least of all 'do we' get happiness out of our daily tasks without paying the price of good hard work.

"Another danger signal is the hankering after changes. It is the old, old story of pastures that always look greener on the other side of the fence. Some do well as long as their work has newness and novelty. But about the time they have gained experience and are prepared to take their efforts count, they get the 'wanderlust.' They make good apprentices but not master craftsmen.

"A prosperous business never ceases to grow and make room for those who demonstrate their merit. It is only when the man himself ceases to grow that he finds his opportunities limited, and feels the urge to seek other fields. It is only then that he gets jealous of other men's successes.

"How we deceive ourselves when we think that the other man's job is free from grind and drudgery! And if we can't stick to the job we have until we have grown out of it, how could we stick to a larger job that carries weightier responsibilities and sterner exactions?

"Being dilatory, growing 'stale' on the job and hankering after changes are temptations that come to all men. There are no favored few who escape. Only some overcome them and succeed, while others yield to them and go down in defeat.

"So let's be honest and frank with ourselves by calling these temptations by their right name—which is mental laziness. Let's give heed to the danger signals. Overcome the obstacles within and the obstacles without will be easily conquered. As the old maxim has it, 'He that ruleth his own spirit is greater than he that taketh a city.'"

FROM BAD TO WORSE.

White Americans are attending strictly to their own business, and enjoying excellent prospects for one of the most prosperous years in the history of the country, they still find time to note that affairs across the sea are steadily going from bad to worse.

Within the past fortnight Germany has offered France a proposition which would, if accepted and carried out faithfully, absolutely prevent a clash between those nations for at least a generation. But France has refused to favor such an arrangement, and in doing so has lost considerable of her prestige with England. While it is hard to sit away off here in Bay St. Louis and size up conditions abroad, or tell just what should or should not be done, we are close enough to see that France will have to show a bit more leniency toward her enemies if she accomplishes that which her allies would like to have, and are willing to make concessions to get—a lasting world peace. More and more it is becoming apparent that France isn't seeking so much a money settlement from Germany so much as she is seeking to hold Germany's nose to the grindstone now that she has it there. And Great Britain has expressed this same belief by refusing to take any further part in conferences which only keep open the wounds of war.

Turkey continues to be a thorn in Great Britain's side, and Russia goes dragging along as far from peace as she has been at any time since she fell into the hands of the Bolsheviks. All of which interests us over here, because we are anxious to see peace settle over the whole world. But all of which cannot, however, prevent us from continuing in our determination to keep right on at work, doing our best as we have always done to make this country dearer to us than any other nation in the world.

ANOTHER WAY TO HELP.

The holidays are over, you've got more time on your hands now than you have had for a good many weeks, so why not resolve to use an hour or so of it to good advantage? Take an hour sometime during the afternoon and drop into the school house. Explain to the teacher that you are always interested in the welfare of the children, but that this is the first opportunity you have had to make a personal call, and to show by that call that you are anxious to be of still greater aid in school affairs if it is possible for you to do so.

The children will be glad to have you call while they are at work. The child is a good deal like the man in one respect—he likes to have people see how well he can do the tasks put before him. The teacher will be pleased to have you call, for while the teacher knows that he or she has the co-operation of the entire neighborhood in their work, they realize it more fully when you show enough interest to call at the school house, and note the work that is being done. Don't get the idea you'll be in the way. It's your institution, and you ought to go around occasionally and see how it is progressing, or if there is any way you can better it. It will be an hour well spent. Bay St. Louis is very and justly proud of its public and private institutions, they have helped put the town on the map but it is surprising how little acquainted our people are with the local schools. At the college, convent, public schools, and not forgetting the "back school," the teachers would welcome callers during the work hours most cordially. Dear reader, it would be of profit to you, too. You'd feel better as a resident and citizen interested in the town and its welfare. Try it.

SPEAKING OF EQUALITY.

Fancy anarchist Russia telling the world that she will deal with other nations "only as an equal." We imagine that even the dumbest man in Bay St. Louis can get a good laugh out of that. What standard does Russia raise by that to judge equality? Is it by barbarism, famine, demoralization of transportation, murder or incompetency in government? Russia has the effrontery to ask civilization to meet her on a plane of equality. But by what possible right does she seek equality with any other nation? They have mispent their moral force (if they ever had any) in riotous and tumultuous administration of public affairs. They have built gallows faster than other countries build new residences. The firing squad has been more active there than the railroads; hunger has supplanted all forms of economic supply. Russia, in her present state, talking about meeting other countries as an equal is only furnishing the other nations with something to laugh about.

THE MURDER OF THE MOREHOUSE.

Defunct Attorney Rush H. Knox, of the Third Mississippi District, residing at Houston, sent out a most original Christmas card to his many friends over the State. We do not know if any reached Bay St. Louis, but it is well worthy of the space it here occupies, and we reproduce it for the spirit it bears and for its originality. Its caption is "Do You Remember Thirty Years Ago?" The average reader does. Here is the message the card carries:

"When eggs were three dozen for 25c, butter 10 cents per pound; milk was 5 cents per quart; the butcher gave away the liver, and treated the kids with bologna sausage; the hired girl received $2.00 per week, and the 'washin' included; and women did not smoke, vote and play poker, or shake the shimmy."

"Men wore whiskers and boots, chewed tobacco, spit on the sidewalk and cursed. Beer was 5 cents per schooner, and the lunch was free. No tips were given to waiters, and the hat check graters were unknown. A kerosene lamp and a stereoscope in the parlor were luxuries.

No one was ever operated on for appendicitis or bought glands. Microbes were unheard of; folks lived to a good old age, and every year walked miles to visit friends.

A MERRY CHRISTMAS.
"Today everybody rides in automobiles, or flies, plays golf, shoots craps, plays the piano with their feet, goes to the movies nightly, smokes cigarettes, drink white mule, and then blame the high cost of living on the Democratic party, and never go to bed the same day they get up, and think they are having a wonderful time.

"These are days of suffrage-eting, profiteering, excess taxes and prohibition, and if you think life is really worth living, I wish you a 'Happy New Year.'"

TO THE LIMIT OF THE LAW.

That the law may be vindicated and the guilty ones, regardless of affiliation, may be punished, is a consummation devoutly wished for by all right-thinking and law-abiding citizens regarding the outcome of affairs in north Louisiana.

That two citizens have been tortured and murdered is evident. The matter has attracted the attention of the country, and every newspaper, more or less, has dwelt on the subject in editorial or other form. As numerous as these articles and different in their get-up, there is one conclusion—that the law may be vindicated and the guilty ones punished.

The Shreveport Times, under the title of "Is This Civilization?" carries the following level-headed, unbiased and splendid editorial, which will go the rounds of the press, and is herewith given reproduction.

"One shudders as he thumbs the pages of history and the eye catches records of the Spanish Inquisitions, or the Indian cruelties. The agonized cries of the victims seem to cry aloud from the chronicles of the ancients and the aborigines which inhabited this country.

"And then one dreams on and the heart throbs with joy that we are living in a day of civilization and advancement. We have rid the country of the savage, we believe. There is peace and quiet everywhere. Those blood-red days of the past have been buried. This is the bright day of civilization.

"But our dreams are rudely shattered as we read the record of the open hearing now in progress in Bastrop, La., where an effort is being made to bare one of the most fiendish crimes in the history of the country, say, the world.

"Never in the height of their savage cruelty did the Indians torture their victims as did the mob which seized Watt Daniels and Thos. F. Richards, according to the findings of the pathologists.

"The Indians on the rampage donned the masks. The savage who committed the Morehouse murders donned the hood. The Indian went by stealth about his fiendish ventures. The Morehouse mob sneaked upon their victims under the cover of darkness.

"There were five men in the party which was waylaid. There were 25 or more persons in the mob which took out the five men. Among the men who were taken out by the mob was one who was 70 years old.

"Can this be the day of civilization in which men conceive deeds of violence of this kind?

"The governor has been criticised for sending troops into Morehouse. He has been held up to ridicule for performing his duty to the State. It is his business to protect the lives, as far as he can, of all the people of Louisiana. As long as mobs are permitted to roam at large under the cover of darkness and perform most revolting crimes in the annals of the State, there is need of extraordinary steps, for this is an extraordinary crime.

"We gratefully reflect that it was the cross of Calvary, the gospel of the redemption through the blood of the Lamb, and which redeemed the world from all unrighteousness, that saved the wards, later killing them, stand in the presence of Him who died that men might live? Can they bear the sight of His countenance who preached a gospel of love and who pleaded for His most inveterate foes in the hour of His greatest agony? 'Father, forgive them for they know not what they do?'

"No matter who is responsible for these crimes, they should be found. All citizens should join in this business of making America once more safe for Americans.

"Louisiana can only be rid of the stain of savagery by punishing the wrongdoers to the limit of the law.

"Some have spoken of 'unfavorable publicity.' They should rather have thought of the menace which exists to every life. As long as masked mobs are permitted to vent their savage spleen, who is safe? What is to prevent any man's enemies—and all have enemies—from masking and murdering and permit the waters of some lake or river to hide their crime?

"We can not cure a wrong with a wrong. Wrong can only be cured by the pursuit of the even course of constituted justice. Therefore let us return to the ways of law and light.

"Let this light shine into the darkest recesses of this most shocking crime, that those guilty of staining the fair name of Louisiana may be dealt with and Louisiana be redeemed by the publication of the fact to the world that civilization and law and order do prevail here.

"Only by bringing the guilty to justice, even though a score or more go to the gallows, will this fiendish crime be atoned. All power to Governor Parker and the constituted authorities in their courageous and relentless quest!"

SPAIN AS SPAIN IS FOR "FASCINATION"

In Mae Murray's newest Metro picture, "Fascination," which is to be presented by Robert Z. Leonard at the A. & G. Theatre Tuesday, most of the scenes are laid in Spain. The interior settings were designed by famous decorators, who built the realistic scenes for Mae Murray's previous picture, "Peacock Alley." The designs for these scenes were obtained through models at the Metropolitan Museum and from Spanish paintings of household design.

But in order to achieve the possibility of having any detail criticized by the Spaniards themselves, when the picture is shown in Spain, a Spanish artist, Francis Cugat, inspected every "set." His job was to go with a fine comb over every detail to see that it was thoroughly "Spanish." "It is one of the rules of theatrical presentation," said Robert Z. Leonard, Miss Murray's director, who presents the production, "that none of the real-life incongruities of back-ground will be reproduced in a picture. In Mae Murray and I were in Spain a year and a half ago, we were entertained in several drawing rooms that might just as well have been drawing rooms in London, Paris or New York. But none of these Spanish drawing rooms would give proper atmosphere for the picture. There can't be a detail that would appear to anyone as incongruous. So we have sought to make each bit of furniture, each painting on the walls, all of the household utensils, all of the cafe fittings, and so on, thoroughly "Spanish." And Senor Cugat is authority for the fact that we have succeeded."

In "Fascination," Miss Murray appears as the daughter of a Spanish-American marriage. The story is by Edmund Goulding, who wrote "Peacock Alley" from a story by Ouida Bergere. The picture was made by Infamy Productions. The cast includes Helen Ware, Courtenay Foote, Creighton Hale, Vincent Coleman, Robert W. Frazer, Charles Lane, Emily Fitzroy and Francis Puglia.

"Cameron of the Royal Mounted" Coming to the A. & G. Theatre Monday Night.

Ralph Connor's story of "Corporal Cameron," which has been adapted for a screen production entitled "Cameron of the Royal Mounted," has been bought by the A. & G. Theatre for an engagement of one night only—Monday.

The story of "Cameron of the Royal Mounted" concerns the adventures of a young man who is forced to leave his home in Scotland and go to Canada, owing to the fact that he is accused of raising a check. In Canada he meets and falls in love with the daughter of a farmer by whom he is employed. Fearing to tell her about the incident of the check, Cameron leaves a note for the girl and goes to the army where he joins the Royal Northwest Mounted Police. A situation develops, however, which brings about his dismissal from the mounted force, and the rest of the story concerns his struggle to explain the past and regain the coveted uniform. In the end he is successful, even to the extent of winning the love of the girl.

"Cameron of the Royal Mounted" is one of the most interesting stories that has ever come from the pen of Ralph Connor. The picture, now in production before it was booked for this city, declares that seldom has there been a picture that can compare with "Cameron of the Royal Mounted." The A. & G. is looking forward to larger crowds during the engagement of "Cameron" than has been entertained at any other time this season.

"The Beautiful Liar" Is Cinderella Play.

A modern version of "Cinderella" forms the background of "The Beautiful Liar," an Associated First National attraction, starring Katherine MacDonald, which is coming to the A. & G. Theatre on Thursday for an engagement of one night only.

Miss MacDonald plays a dual role in this production, taking the parts of Helen Haymes, a stenographer, in humble circumstances, working in a broker's office and living in a cheap boarding house, and of Elsie Parmelee, the reigning musical comedy queen.

When the fairy waved her wand Cinderella found herself in silks and satins, and was given entrance to the grand ball.

Helen Haymes had a similar experience, but it was not a fairy and a wand which did it. The kind fate that took it into their heads to relieve the monotony of her drab existence and they did it with a vengeance, for before her strange adventures had ended Helen had accepted the proposal of a handsome young millionaire.

The millionaire was Bobby Bates, and the first-time Helen saw him was when he was calling on her employer, Emmons & Co. From the strange actions of her heart she knew that at last she had fallen in love, but because of the difference in their stations she had no thought to the possibility of a romance involving herself and Bobby.

Shortly thereafter she found herself compelled to impersonate the famous Elsie Parmelee and to take part in a theatrical production for the celebration of the 14th. Her courage began to wane when she learned that she was supposed to act, but it returned quickly when she found that Bobby was to be her leading man.

Bobby's discovery of her real identity almost wrecked their romance, but as he had to be with her—by telling her he was penniless—he decided that he was no better.

A DAY FROM MAE MURRAY'S DIARY.

(By Mae Murray.)

Onuba," said Mae Murray, the screen star. "We had a sensational and surprising reception, and then were greeted with amazing enthusiasm at the showing of 'Peacock Alley.'"

"I saw a great crowd gathered at the shore—thousands of people. I thought we had landed in the midst of some Cuban fiesta. It never dawned upon me that the crowd was there on my account, until Senor Ratchett laughed into my ear, 'It's Mae Murray day! See! I looked and I saw huge floral designs that spelled 'Bienvenida—Welcome!' They crowded me as I was landed at the dock. Everybody wanted to shake my hand. It was noon as we went slowly through the crowded streets, with everybody cheering. I was quite overcome when we reached the Hotel Sevilla, but Bob said I had to be ready for the newspaper men at luncheon. From 3 o'clock on I was interviewed and posed for the newspaper photographers. I then dressed for the theatre, where they were giving the first showing of 'Peacock Alley.' The house was in an uproar. They wouldn't stop applauding. They wouldn't stop sobbing with joy. I thanked them."

EXCELLENT PLAYERS IN John S. Robertson's Fine Production, "Love's Boomerang."

One of the best casts ever assembled in any Paramount picture is that assembled by John S. Robertson, producer, in "Love's Boomerang," a delightful photoplay of circus life which will be shown at the A. & G. Theatre next Friday.

Miss Forrest is seen in the part of "Perpetua," and David Powell appears opposite her in the role of her "adopted father," the artist, Brian. Another important member of the cast is John Milner, a well known American actor, who appeared in several George Fitzmaurice screen productions. Mr. Milner's role is that of Russell Felton, Perpetua's real father.

John Diamond, Brian's lawyer friend, is portrayed by Dick Webb, a well known screen actor, who in a comparatively short time has risen from "extra" to leading man. He made his first film when he appeared opposite Malvina Longfellow in "The Story of the Rosary."

The principal characters in the circus episodes of the story are played by Roy Byford and Florence Wood, both popular players, who are seen as the circus proprietor and his wife, Madame and Mademoiselle Lamballe. The role of Jane Egg, a bareback rider, is in the hands of Amy Willard; Tom Volbecque appears in the congenial part of Aguste the Clown.

It happened in Hollywood. A motor cop leaped to his mount when he saw an automobile bearing a "London 1922" license rolling up the boulevard.

"That guy must have traveled at night, to get this far from home without being pinched," he muttered as he drew alongside and signalled the car to stop.

There he learned that the auto was returning from Monrovia, where it had "worked" in the English state wedding scenes of "The Woman Who Walked Alone," a George Melford production with Dorothy Dalton, which will open for one night at the A. & G. Theatre next Saturday.

Under his British camouflage, this machine had California license, which the driver had neglected to uncover, and the policeman was new in Hollywood, or he would have guessed as much.

The cast of this unusual Paramount feature includes Milton Sills, Wanda Hawley, Charles Ogle, "Lefty" Flynn, Cecil Holland, John Davidson, Isabel Van Buren and others. Will Richey wrote the screen version of a story by John Colton. Bert Glennon photographed.

Monroe, La., Jan. 13.—J. L. Covington & Co., which conducted a mail order liquor house in Monroe before the days of Volstead, received a letter from an individual signing the name of Pearl Bassette, of Brunswick, Miss. The letter was dated January 13, and read as follows:

"Dear Company—I am writing to you to tell you that I am one of your customers for 1923. The Big Mail Order House I want please it at once to deliver to me from your place, sir, because I certainly have liquor, and I am a real stuff and no mistake. You get what you want of this firm and if you are prompt I may get you subscribers for that real article."

The letter was enclosed in a special J. L. Covington & Co. envelope, bearing the inscription "Wholesale and retail liquor; quickest shippers in the business."

NEW SUIT RECALLS WELL-KNOWN FORMER ONE

S. H. Kress & Co., of New Orleans, Again Sued by Mississippi—Former Suit Won by Bay St. Louis Attorney—Death Claim Caused by Use of Shaving Brush.

S. H. Kress & Co., who contested successfully a hard-fought case in the United States Court in Biloxi at the February term, 1919, when sued by Mrs. Emma McC. Lindsay for the death of her husband, who was alleged to have died from anthrax contracted from a shaving brush said to have been purchased at the Kress Stores, were recently asked in that court to pay a substantial sum by Miss Bessie Lee Crosby, who, it is said, claims that she was falsely charged by an employee of the defendant, says the Biloxi Herald of Thursday afternoon.

The attorney for Kress & Co. filed before Judge Hall, of Hattiesburg, the usual petition and bond for removal of the cause to the Biloxi federal court, but the petition was denied, and the trial set for hearing on February 5th. The transcript of record was not yet filed, although the federal clerk here, but the order of court denying the petition and motion was received this morning, and the record expected tonight or tomorrow.

When the Lindsay-Kress famous shaving brush case was first filed in Biloxi, a verdict was obtained by plaintiff from the jury, but the circuit court of appeals reversed it, and the defendant won a complete victory. The company was defended by Carl Marshall, of Bay St. Louis, and Charles Brown, the great New Orleans lawyer, who was assisted by J. M. Shayne, defeated Martin Behrman for mayor. It is said that in the present Crosby case the attorneys for Kress & Co. may have to secure an injunction from Judge Holmes against the Forrest Circuit Court to prevent a trial, although it is also said that the attorneys may let the plaintiff go his way in that court and proceed in the federal court under federal statutes and decision on the transcript of record—as if the view be taken of the removal of the case to the federal court, and adequate bond ordered to remove the case, and that the State court will therefore proceed without authority of law.

MISSISSIPPI WILL OPPOSE SPILLWAY.

Washington, Jan. 8.—There is considerable discussion in the lower Mississippi Valley in connection with the proposed additional flood control legislation as to whether a gigantic spillway should be constructed south of New Orleans. The people of that city are leading the agitation for such a spillway.

At the hearing held in Washington last month by the flood control committee of the House the question of a spillway was discussed by President Potter, of the Mississippi River commission, and by Mr. W. B. Egan, of the Mississippi River commission, who is in charge of the proposed spillway.

Mr. Humphreys: "I am going to ask this question: You build a spillway here 6,000 feet wide and five miles from there the water passing through it runs across the low country and strikes the sea level instead of going 90 miles down the river as it does now." "Of course, it would run right of way there and it is a possibility, you think of that washing out a deep channel, across this five mile stretch?"

Col. Potter: "It will either wash out or fill up."

Mr. Humphreys: "Well, let us take the washout end of it. Suppose it washed out and the spillway goes out, it would be like the river cutting across a bend?"

Col. Potter: "Yes, sir."

Mr. Humphreys: "That would be a mud flat the same as the lower river."

Col. Potter: "It would become a mud flat the same as the lower river."

Mr. Humphreys: "Then it would gradually fill out until the river made itself 90 miles long in that direction."

Col. Potter: "Yes, sir."

Mr. Humphreys: "What would happen to Mississippi Sound?"

Col. Potter: "Fill it up."

SOME BIG MISSISSIPPIANS.

Senator Pat Harrison spoke at the Jackson Day dinner in Philadelphia. There are few large cities of the East and Middle West where the junior Mississippi senator has not been invited and spoken. Watch the prognostications and the pre-convention workings of the Mississippi Democrats for his name in connection with the vice presidency. Senator Williams will be given a farewell banquet by the Mississippi Society in Washington in February. It will be a notable and interesting event, and what that statesman will say there will be repeated the country over, because he will make signal utterance. Now is the time to urge him to become governor of this State.

He has every qualification for the governorship. He has no great ambition for it. He does not need the salary; he has the state and executive office in high place. Ben Humphreys said he did not want it or would not seek it, in a very honorable ambition he does want it, but wisely stays in his high place in the House, where he can remain indefinitely. Delta constituents being very wise and astute for their own interests; knowing when they have a good man to represent them—and loving Ben.

There they are: Williams, Harrison, Humphreys, all big men, broad minded, loyal, Mississippians, incorruptible gentlemen—Gulport Herald.
